

Greetings XXXX,

I hope this message finds you well. My name is XXXX and I am a local undergraduate student studying XXXX at Juniata College. Currently, I am involved with a population health program at JC Blair Memorial Hospital called the Force for Health that I would love to share with the students of XXXX.

Specifically, I wanted to touch base with you to gauge your interest in having the students of XXXX participate in the Force for Health's service-based learning projects that promote leadership, health advocacy, and health education.

Through the Force for Health Program, we will be encouraging students to do a service-based learning project using what we call the "IDEAS" model. Using this model, students will Identify a health concern in the community or at school that they would like to address, Design a project to help advocate and/or fix the health concern, Engage and execute the project, Analyze the impact of the project, and then Share their project with the community. We hope to facilitate these projects in the local schools and our goal is to invite the students who did IDEAS projects to an event called "Force for Huntingdon Leadership Conference" that we hope to host at Juniata College in the Spring, to allow the students to present their service projects, receive feedback, and possibly win funding for their project for the following year.

Notably, as a XXXX graduate of XXXX, I am interested in helping the students of our school complete these projects. We expect that this could be done through a trip to the high school every other week for around an hour or two to help the students with their projects and answer any questions they have.

If you are interested in working with us, I would love to talk with you more about the program and would be happy to answer any questions you have.

Kind regards,
XXXX
